

Dan Almog and Dr. Tzipi Hart, Ben-Gurion University

About Dani Almog: Almost three years ago, retired from Amdocs where he last served as director for test automation building all Amdocs infrastructure for test automation including the development of testing tools, methodologies and training for all Amdocs R&D division with the new technology.

Dani joined the Ben Gurion University academic staff; teaching and researching. Most of his writings are based on his experience in Amdocs and other organizations He worked for. Dani teaches SW quality Engineering and Testing, and research the interaction between development processes and quality/testing trying to introduce to the academic world some of the achievements and work models developed in Amdocs and the industry in all. He also tries to apply the open thinking and free spirit of the academy into new paradigms trying to influence industry